Term 3 offers (and in no particular order) A look at an invention that revolutionised our lives (and it is not the guillotine); did Lady Godiva really exist and was she our first immortalised exhibitionist?; Did America really put a monkey on trial; a Greek myth that is quite good fun; and a Russian building story.

Term 4 - short course, could comprise (and again in no particular order) A history of high heels and why they are so popular; a famous Italian; when is an army not an army and a Halloween special. All good reasons to join me as we fossick in the bottom drawers of history's dusty attic and bring to light some of the stranger stories that sometimes make us shake our heads in puzzlement. Virginia Rowley, Mystery History Tutor 0406 855 349

Proposal for a U3A Baw Baw Course

Members are invited to send ideas for future Courses for consideration. Adoption of any suggestion will depend on availability of a presenter and compatibility with the criteria below. We also welcome proposals by members to present a course. If appropriate, support will be given to enable such a course to proceed.

U3A philosophies and learning principles emphasis the value of life-long learning, self-help and shared learning, and co-operation and collaboration in learning and teaching. In the U3A environment no distinction is drawn between learners and teachers. All of us have unique knowledge and experience that can be shared with others through U3A courses and activities.

Courses offered at U3A Baw Baw must not promote political or religious beliefs or expound controversial theories. A balanced objective history of such beliefs or theories can be presented subject to the scrutiny by the course committee.

Here's a guide to assist members who wish to propose a course or activity for the U3A Baw Baw courses program.

PROCEDURE:

1. Discuss your initial ideas other U3A members
2. Contact the Courses Coordinator when you have developed your ideas
3. Complete the details on the Course Proposal Form
4. Submit the Form to the Courses Coordinator for consideration by the Courses Committee
5. The Courses Committee may seek more information, approve it in principle, or approve it for inclusion in the program

NEED HELP:

The Course Proposal Form is designed to help you think about what needs to be considered in running a course. If you are willing to offer to run a course, no matter whether you are thinking about a short course of a week or two or something a bit more ambitious, please feel free to talk with the Courses Coordinator or a member of the Courses Committee. They would be more than happy to give assistance.
