

Mystery History Term 1 2025

Another term filled with the vagaries of history is on offer for you. As always, we will be ranging far and wide, up and down the time line and this time up and down the blurry lines of stupidity as well!

We will visit a Greek myth and then hop around to investigate a disappearance from an island and discover everything there is to be discovered about that. We will look at some lawbreaking in early Australia and at some terrible crimes in the history of Hungary. We look at the world of language: what did the Anglo Saxons ever do for us and our health, I hear you ask? Well, come along let me tell you! We will also pay a visit to a well-loved children's book and its author: the things you find out when you reread a book as an adult and are not just seeing the movie. Of course, we will look at royalty too – why not, I hear you say, everyone likes to look at foibles of royalty and this royal family has plenty of foibles. How was the interior of Australia discovered? Obviously, it was one step at a time, but did they have to make so many strange decisions? Some of our early explorers seemed to think eccentricities were the norm. Medicine will rear its head again as we look into the way doctors learned their art and we will finish up with a saint near his own special day. Enough said except that I hope this whets your appetite to join us in our quest for more information about the whims and quirks of history. Let me be your guide.
